Story:

David is a fairly busy man, with his job and his crazy family it doesn't leave him a lot of time for himself. He used to love to play games with his buddies when he was younger, but life caught up to him and he just can't see himself sitting down and playing a good video game anymore. His friends have all grown up now and they're all scattered accross the country. It would be difficult to get the gang back together one last time, but nothing would make him happier.
